The roads must account for every car held over time on their lines, and this is making the roads more eager to get cars placed and unloaded than was the case before, a year ago. The circular canceling the one and the roads are showing no hesitancy in enforcing the per diem rules. At local stations many shippers have been in the habit of ordering cars a week or two ahead and then loading them as desired. Several of the roads have issued circulars announcing demurrage for loading cars so placed and not forwarded at once. The cost of reform in additional clerk hire will be smaller than has been predicted. Car service men who were disposed to oppose its introduction are coming over to the other for roses this year our continental neighbors last season wisely laid out considerable tracts of land for the special cultivation of this emblem of loyalty. It is to be regretted that at home the same intelligence has not been displayed. It has been estimated that over 60,000,000 roses will be worn by His Majesty's loyal subjects on the two days of the coronation week, and when it is remembered that the price of each rose will be at the lowest estimate twopence, it will be easily seen that the amount so expended will represent a very big sum of money; a good deal of it will, however, find its way into the pockets of the far-seeing gardener on the continent. After all, the rose is a simple bloom to culchecks for $479 each for heirs to an estate | tivate; it requires chiefly plenty of sun-
